

Thank you for your email expressing interest in becoming an AMEB (NSW) examiner.

Please look through the biographies of our current music examiners on our website at www.ameb.nsw.edu.au to gain an idea of the credentials and background of the examiners we hire. Performance experience and academic qualifications are common amongst our current faculty of examiners, but an additional aspect that is seen favourably is familiarity with the AMEB syllabuses for which you intend to examine. Many successful AMEB teachers are ideal candidates as they are familiar with the syllabus requirements from their years of success as teachers in the AMEB examination system and years of reading the examination reports of the candidates they have been submitting.

From time to time we undertake an Examiner Recruitment drive to bring in more examiners in various categories when it becomes necessary to replace or expand the current AMEB (NSW) Examiner staff. If you would like us to notify you when we are next recruiting for examiners of relevant instruments, please complete the following information and return the form to our office by post or email.

For your information we usually advertise for examiners on www.ameb.nsw.edu.au and www.iworkfor.nsw.gov.au websites.

The process of examiner recruitment involves lodging a written application and, if considered appropriate by the selection panel, you will be invited for an interview. Should you be successful, this is followed by an induction process and then two years as probationary examiner before moving to full accreditation status, provided there are no problems along the way.
